A Shock for Wall Street.
One Drunk, One Dead.
Bombs Far Apart.
Our President as Rajah.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1929, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

THE supreme court, which upholds contracts, surprised Wall Street Monday. New York city supplied money to build subways. Private individuals, allowed to operate the subways, wrote into their contract with the city a five-cent fare agreement. The late Thomas F. Ryan told this writer that this was put in at the special request of the subway operators, for, said he, "We could have carried passengers profitably for three cents," then.

BUT wages went up, outrageous overcapitalization made a five-cent fare apparently unprofitable. "We want seven cents, please," said the subways.

STOCK speculators were short when the supreme court replied, "You must keep your five-cent contract with the city, as the city would keep a contract with you." Old-timers in Wall Street, "loaded" up with subway stocks, acted quickly as usual. They spread a report that the supreme court had decided in favor of a higher fare, and sent prices up while they "unloaded."

WHEN the truth came out, "Interboro" dropped from $55 to $30, and B. M. T., the Brooklyn subway, fell from $78.50 to $56. The lambs were the shock absorbers.

NEW YORK is picturesque, especially along the South street waterfront, visible from the room in which this was written, at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon. On the right the fine old Brooklyn bridge sweeps across the river. Farther south, among the towers of Wall Street, you pay 20 per cent for your money.

JUST north of Brooklyn bridge for some time a big steam boat has been tied up. Somebody found whisky on it. On a big beam in front of Dock No. 28 of the Bridgeport line, a miserable man about 50 lies on his back, dead drunk, the sun streaming on his face. Twenty yards farther to the north, a figure is stretched out at the water's edge. It's a dead man, the face and the upper part of the body covered with a black tarpaulin. Somebody pulled him out of the water many hours ago. He still lies there on his back. Somebody will take him away presently.

NAMED ENVOY

Charles Gates Dawes.

DAWES NAMED AMBASSADOR TO GREAT BRITAIN

Formal Announcement Is Made at White House.

ENGLAND O. K.'s Former Vice President Is Now in San Domingo.

B. GEORGE R. HOLMES International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 10.—(INS)—Formal announcement was made at the White House today that Charles G. Dawes is to be the next ambassador to Great Britain.

The announcement came as no surprise, for it had been known that the former vice president was persona grata. A reply was received from London this morning that Gen. Dawes is entirely acceptable to the British government, and the announcement immediately followed.

Gen. Dawes is now in San Domingo where he is heading a commission of financial experts to revise that little republic's fiscal system.

LONDON, April 10.—(INS)—Charles Gates Dawes, former vice president of the United States and chief author of the Dawes plan, is entirely satisfactory to Great Britain as American ambassador to the court of St. James. It was learned from a source close to the foreign office this afternoon.

However, any announcement regarding the appointment of Gen. Dawes must come from Washington. Nothing will be given out here.

Gen. Dawes is well known in England by reputation and it is obvious he would be accorded a cordial welcome.

Ohioan Kidnaped and Flogged. DENNISON, O., April 10.—(INS)—Police were at a loss today to ascribe a motive for the attack upon James Turch, of this city, who was kidnaped by a band of men and flogged. The man was found in a semi-conscious condition along a highway. He refused to reveal the names or descriptions of his assailants, and would not discuss the "beating" with authorities.

Gov. Myers Y. Cooper Will Pay Own Expenses to Europe Declines to Use State Funds on War Zone Trip.

COLUMBUS, O., April 10.—Gov. Myers Y. Cooper will pay his own expenses to Europe next fall, even though the Able bill, passed by the legislators in their recent session, provides a $25,000 fund for the governor, adjutant general and a commission of ten to go to the foreign country. This was the announcement made by Ohio's chief executive today. Adjutant General Arthur D. Reynolds followed in the footsteps of Gov. Cooper and made known his intention of also defraying his own expenses. A gentle "newspaper razzing" given the bill when it was first introduced and again when it was passed is believed to be responsible for the officials' actions.

"Both Gov. Cooper and myself are able to pay our own expenses on this trip and we fully intend to do so. I though the legislature has generously appropriated money for our use," Reynolds declared.

The appropriation will now be used only by the commission of ten, to be appointed by the governor from the World war veterans in the state legislature and the band that is to be selected from the surviving members of the 37th division, A. L. F.

The party is to take part in dedication ceremonies of Ohio monuments to its World war dead in France and Belgium.

Six companies operating nine general ware plants are said to be in the merger, while other applications are pending. They are the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles and the Smith-Phillips China companies of this city; the National China company, Salineville; the Saxon and French China companies, controlled by the Sebring Manufacturing corporation of Sebring; the Carrollton Pottery company of Carrollton and the Pope-Gosser China company of Coshocton.

MAYOR TO SIGN RAIL ORDINANCE

Ordinance granting the Pennsylvania Railroad company permission to "relocate existing tracks" and "construct an additional track" through East Liverpool, approved on third reading by city council last night, today awaited the action of Mayor Ralph C. Benedum who indicated that he would sign it.

Councilmen A. C. Frost and H. S. Lindell opposed the measure. Members Altman, Fleming, Ferguson and Hughes supported it. Councilman Green arrived too late to cast his vote.

The ordinance requires the company to file written acceptance with Council Clerk G. A. Shone within 30 days.

of State Fire Marshal Ray R. Gill's 30-day "tear-down" ruling.

Councilmen, accompanied by Mayor Ralph C. Benedum, Service Director Moore and Fire Chief Thomas Bryan, will confer with Daniel M. Cronin, of the old Standard pottery, Broadway, at 5 o'clock tonight, with a view to renting the building.

Cronin, who conferred with council last night, said that he planned to remodel the building for "other purposes" this summer, but that arrangements could be made for the fire department to occupy a section of the structure. He said that the razing of kilns in the plant would be started shortly.

Fire Marshal's Order. From three to four months will be required to erect a new building, it is believed.

Gill's "tear-down" order, issued Monday following an inspection of the structure, declared the fire station building to be "dilapidated and by reason thereof, is specially liable to fire and a menace to surrounding property."

"Therefore," the order continues, "by reason of the premises and pursuant to the authority vested in me by virtue of my office under Sections 334 to 337 of the General Code of Ohio, you are hereby ordered within 30 days from the date of service of this order to tear down the above mentioned building, removing all debris from the premises."

Bonds Will Be Issued. While no figures relative to the new station house has been set, it is estimated the structure will cost between $40,000 and $50,000.

Bonds for the improvement will be issued inside of the 15-mill limitation, to be liquidated from city revenue. These bonds, it is said, can be issued without handicapping other city departments or delaying other public improvements.

This scheme was disclosed when a retired farmer, near New Madison, became suspicious and called authorities.

ATTENDANCE MARK SOUGHT

School Chief Appeals For Co-operation of Parents.

With the exaltation of the ideal of good attendance as the supreme purpose, Wellsville public schools will attempt in the next two months to establish a new record.

"Breaking records is not the principal idea," said Supt. S. E. Daw today. "It is our plan to instill in the minds of students the value of regular attendance."

"Each month the superintendent receives the attendance report of other schools in the valley and he finds invariably that the percentage of attendance for the local schools is below that of other schools."

"After considering the matter carefully, we feel there is no good reason why this should be true. In order that we may have the fullest co-operation of all parents of the city, we are making this special appeal for their assistance during the months of April and May. During the past years we have always enjoyed the finest co-operation from parents of the community and we know that the present case will prove no exception."

"We are now approaching the end of the year at which time the pupil receives his report indicating either that he is to be promoted or to be retained in his present grade. Many studies of the cause of failure and retention indicate that the chief cause is irregular attendance. During these two months following the spring vacation, we hope to eliminate this cause as fully as possible and to do this the schools will need the heartiest support and co-operation of the home. The boy or girl who is permitted to be irregular in school soon takes the attitude that his school work is not important. If parents permit irregularity, the pupil feels that his parents do not attach a great deal of importance to his work. Let us exalt good attendance by requiring every child to be in school except of course, for causes which are entirely unavoidable."

Condition Unchanged.

Condition of Mrs. Edward Urie who has been seriously ill at her home, 723 Commerce street, was reported today to be unchanged.

Clean Streets

Cleanliness in the streets is just as important as cleanliness in the home, from a sanitary standpoint, in the opinion of Service Safety Director John W. Moore, who has asked co-operation in keeping East Liverpool
 spick and span.

A warning against littering the streets with waste paper has just been issued by Mayor Benedum's cabinet officer, who points out that not infrequently the downtown district is used as a dumping place for refuse within a few hours after the street department has swept the streets.

Waste paper, old newspapers, etc., are thoughtlessly thrown in the gutters by pedestrians and motorists, according to complaints. And the result is the downtown zones often present unsightly appearances.

Within the next week, waste paper boxes, which were recently removed, will be placed on street corners. The public is urged to co-operate in keeping the streets clean by depositing all waste matter in these receptacles.

Civic pride should prompt a hearty response to the city officials' appeal.

Blindness

Speaking from the darkness from which he may never emerge, despite the hopes of himself and the surgeons who have been handling his case, Booth Tarkington, the author, gives what to many of us will be a new insight into the state of blindness.

"I have just been having the very interesting experience of being blind," Mr. Tarkington said to press representatives at Atlantic City, a few days ago, to which resort he went while awaiting another operation at Johns Hopkins hospital, which it is anticipated will restore his vision. "No man would be so foolish as to say that he would like to be blind. But I can not say that I have minded it. It has been a great experience for me. I really can't complain. Aside from the realization that I am dependent upon others and perhaps a burden, it has been a happy time.

"It is hard for any one who has not been blind to realize what a thrill it is not to have to see everything.
 It is really marvelous not to look at a lot of things and people that you don't want to see.

"Some one thanked God who made him blind so that his soul could see. I have come to believe that there is a lot of truth in that.

"I have done more work during the last year than ever before. I have written a novel, short stories and several essays. It is true, I believe, that being unable to see is a great aid to concentration. You are not distracted by outside elements."

It is not at all hard to understand how Mr. Tarkington has been able to profit in the way of production by his loss of sight. It is easy to understand how blindness, after one has become resigned and accustomed to it, may become an aid to concentration. There can be no question but what the loss of one sense leads to the strengthening of the other senses. But even so, few of us are so enmeshed by our occupations, by our life works, that added ability in the following of them would compensate for the loss of our sight.

Pharmacy

Where is it that you go when you want to cure a stomach ache? Who tells you what to do for baby's croup? Who tells you where to find a street location, or what John Jones looks like? Who always has some extra stamps, a pen and an envelope? Who? The druggist in the corner drug store, who knows a little bit about everything and knows how to find out more about it, if necessary.

The evolution of the drug store has been a most interesting thing. The original drug stores were just drug dispensaries and nothing else. Their sign was a mortar and pestle; their proprietors were usually white-haired old gentlemen with a weakness for the mysteries of alchemy. There are a few of them to be found yet, but they are depending on novelty to support them.

The pharmacist's shop, nevertheless, is found in every modern drug store, tucked away in the back of the store room, or elevated to the dignity of a balcony location.
 They are marvels of convenience and arrangement and are ruled over by efficient gentlemen with college de-gress in pharmacy. Their function is still the same, their importance is just as great, but their attraction has been eclipsed by the multifarious paraphernalia of the 20th century drug store.

The modern drug store and the modern clerk are distinctive products of American culture, the culture which has produced the drug store cowboy, skyscrapers, eigaret lighters, serve-self restaurants, and jazz. They are the result of a consistent demand for convenience and efficiency. They are the solution to the problem of a complex civilization which inevitably created a lot of loose ends which had to be provided for to keep the main body of the fabric from unravelling.

It is next to impossible for a pharmacist's shop to pay expenses, if it has no sidelines. A cigar shop couldn't go by itself, nor could a pen shop, a perfume shop, a stationery shop or a patent medicine shop, under ordinary circumstances. Ambitious enterprises conceived the idea of a combination of a number of sidelines, based on the solid foundation of an established business. The same spirit of enterprise suggested a personnel for these organizations that would be a combination of the sympathy of a family doctor, the sagacity of a patriarch, the knowledge of a university professor, the tolerance of a saint, the deftness of a magician and a fund of knowledge that would be a summary of the contents of Who's Who, The Automobile Blue Book, The Encyclopedia Britannica, the telephone book, and the city directory. The proprietor of the modern drug store was the answer. He can accommodate you with egg dyes, antidotes for carbolic acid, candy for the lady friend and advice about making the most of the opportunities which the presentation of candy should offer.
 And, withal, he doesn't say much about it, but remains in the background, one of the great army of prewarpublic servants.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 10.—It seems probable that immigration will loom almost as importantly as farm relief and tariff in the extra session of congress to meet April 15 for President Hoover has proclaimed that the national origins law is to go into effect July 1, next.
 He did so against his will because Attorney General Mitchell had furnished him with a legal opinion to the effect that action of congress, establishing the national origins rule, was mandatory. Congress, however, was very half-hearted about the matter and it is understood that if the president should urge either further postponement of the effectiveness of this measure or outright repeal he would meet with a favorable response from the legislators.

We have been receiving immigrants since 1921 under the national quota law. This provided that in any one year we would permit to enter the United States from any foreign country a number of the nationals of that country equal to 2 per cent of persons of that national stock in the United States in 1890. At first this was expected to be operative for only a year but through the working of extensions and of successive postponements in the effective date of the national origins law, we are still under the quota rule.

The story of immigration to the United States is one of intense fascination. Its prime importance lies in the fact that the character of immigration eventually determines the complexion of a nation, especially of a new nation such as the United States. In the last half century there have been much striking changes in the character of our immigration that fears have been expressed that the United States was rapidly losing all of the old characteristics.

Up to 1880 our immigration had originated almost wholly in England, Holland, Sweden, Scotland, and Ireland. Ethnically these peoples were originally all of the same general stock; they were all Nordics. They amalgamated quite naturally with the original American colonial stock and became welded into a completely homogeneous people. Further, they were all capable farmers by inheritance and tradition; they were adventurers pioneers endowed with great resourcefulness and courage. For the most part they needed no acclimatization.

But in the decade from 1880 to 1890 a distinct shift took place. In that decade the population increased 12, 466,000, reaching a total of 62,622,000, or about half what it is now. The shift was amazing. Up to 1880 only 14 per cent of our immigration came from eastern and southern Europe. By 1890 more than 18 per cent of our immigration came from these sources.

In 1890, 71 per cent of our immigration was from the northern European countries. As the quota law provided that annual immigration could amount to 2 per cent of the nationals of foreign countries who had located here up to 1890 it will be seen that northern Europe was favored. However, the quota law was not passed until 1921 and meantime the southern European influx had been enormous. It reached its peak in the year 1907 when 1,285,349 immigrants entered, 744 per cent of whom came from eastern and southern Europe.
 The proportions had completely switched.

During all that time between 1880 and 1921, there had been constant discussion of the problem. As early as 1896 Senator Lodge of Massachusetts introduced the first bill providing for a literacy test. It was 20 years before a test was successfully enacted by congress. During that period it had been voted by one house or the other or both tactical of 32 times. Three presidents—Cleveland, Taft and Wilson—had vetoed it. It finally became law without the president's approval.

The quota law of 1921 had the effect of cutting down eastern and southern immigration tremendously. More northern Europeans could have come than desired to while only a fraction of the southern Europeans eager to come could be admitted. In 1914, 164,133 northern European immigrants had been admitted; under the 1921 quotas, 198,082 were eligible. In 1914, 894,258 eastern and southern Europeans were admitted; in 1921 only 157,630 were permitted to enter. This turned the tide completely.

The allocation to the nations of the numbers of their nationals admissible shows some interesting results.
 Great Britain may send 31,714 more than under the quota law, while 25,170 fewer Germans may enter. Ireland is cut down by 10,714 and the Scandinavian countries by 11,931. Italy may send 1957 more immigrants, Austria 628, Poland 542, and Russia 536.

As the northern European countries did not always send their full quotas under the quota law, it is doubted whether these increased allowances to them will be availed of and the result will be a reduction in total immigration as the place allowed can not be taken by other nationals.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, April 10.—Luncheon inspires more smart dressing these days than dinner. For some time dining out has been slumping. The annoyance in serving cocktails, wines and liquors had much to do with it.
 And what Mr. Hoover said added a dot to the restraint.

There was also the haste required to rush to the theater and opera even in the newly regulated traffic, to be considered. One may visit many of those erstwhile haunts where formal dress was almost obligatory and not find the dining rooms more than half filled.

By 9 almost every first class place in town is deserted. Those who used to entertain in public now entertain at home. The well-dressed lady these days parades the new frock between 12 and 3. Such places as the Ritz,
 Colony, Pierre's, Marguery, Sherry's,
 Crillon etc., are packed then.

Luncheon has become leisurely—a two-hour affair with another hour to gossip in the coffee room. The biggest display of jewels used to flash at night but are now often seen at noon.

That is why the most popular places are dim with a seductive haze of light.
 From a darkened corner a quick gesture scatters a thousand stars from a wrist of diamond bracelets. One sees the dark flame of black opals, novelties in carved and painted crystal, cold white pearls, velvety green jade and all the popular gems extolled in the jewelry ads.

The most famous fashion designers lend their talents to the luncheon ensemble. Ladies are buying more mid-day costumes than they are for evening wear. And the prices are higher. There are luncheon costumes from $200 to $300 an dime average is $200.

Fashionable luncheon places, too, have become a show window for the demure girls wishing to get on in the world. They may display their fine feathers. Perhaps they fall under the appraising eye of a movie magnate.
 Or a theatrical producer. Or a rich blade chafing in single harness.

A block on East 60th street offers a row of unique and highly specialized shops. They cater to the upper East Side's Gold Coast. One establishment is engaged in removing spots from expensive fabrics. It is not a dry cleaning place—just a spot remover. A shop deals exclusively in occult books and another in psycho-analytical tomes. A magnificent hand laundry has a reception room in modernistic style. There is a florist whose customers pay from $50 to $150 weekly to furnish flowers from table decorations to the gentlemen's lapel flower.

I like the story—relayed by Chic
 Sale—of the New York girl, just married, keeping house on a farm near Scarsdale. Each morning she ties up the garbage with bright ribbons and brings it to town to deposit in a green tin street corner repository.

And a heckler drove a pretty vande-ville singer to eventual hysteria on upper Broadway. The lady's climatical song had a line ending: "But darling I'll be true to you." And a piqued boy friend in the gallery would in-tone: "Also the army and navy and seventh regiment," until they threw him out.

Courtney Ryley Cooper, the celebrated young writer of circus stories, is as bald as the well known eagle and not at all sensitive about it. At a table at the Dutch Treat the other day they were giving him a gentle razzing about his lack of hair.

"You never saw him furniture with a marble top," replied Cooper.
 "Nor grass growing out of cement either," cracked Ray Long.

Add big hugs for Police Commissioner Whalen: New York policemen are no longer permitted to solicit ordinary citizens to buy tickets to benefits or other rackets.

An observing young private secretary has discovered prominent New Yorkers may usually be found in their offices on Wednesday. "That's the day they get back from their week ends," she explains.

At the big theatrical first nights they are called "the ermine" wrap show offs. And if you attend you get the idea. If you don't, never mind. It isn't important anyway.

And here's real summer—in person!

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

Everybody hates to have pain. A man will do almost anything to be relieved of it. He will try any prescription offered. That is why "pain killers" have such sale.

There is little choice in pains. It seems to you the particular pain you have, is the worst that ever happened to anybody. You just "can't stand it."

Perhaps I have told you the story of the old lady who telephoned a new doctor at 2 o'clock in the morning.
 She wanted him to "come over at once.
 I can't stand this pain another minute!" How long have you had it?"

asked the sleepy doctor. "Thirty years, and I can't endure it any longer."

Some patient persons do put up with pain for a long time. They appear to regard it as inevitable, or have faith to believe it will wear out after a while. But the time comes when resistance is broken and there is a demand for relief.

There are many cases of drug addiction that can be traced to the desire for control of pain. Unfortunately, there are tens of thousands of drug addicts who have no such excuse for their condition. We can pity the suffering who becomes addicted, but not the social addict who takes the drug for the physical enjoyment he gets out of it. "Joy riding" and pain killing are two different things.

What should you do about pain?
 There is always a cause for pain.
 I need not tell you this. But many times it is difficult to find that cause.
 Yet it must be located, if a real cure is to be effected.

Toothache and earache are so definitely located that, in most instances, the cause of the pain is readily found.
 Headache, neuralgia, neuritis, "rheumatic pains, and pain in the abdomen, are more obscure as to cause.

"It is not "natural" to have pain.
 Persistent or periodical pain must always be viewed with suspicion. It must not be disregarded. Even though it may come from something of no particular consequence in it

"STOLEN KISSES" CERAMIC BILL

The Folies Bergeres—famous Paris music hall—with its lights, its laughter, its pretty girls and its hectic air of informality, is the hectic setting for many scenes in "Stolen Kisses," the Warner Bros. production starring May McAvoy, which comes to the Ceramic theater tomorrow for a three-day run.

The beautiful chorus girls of the Folies afford an entrancing background for the riotous action that takes place within the theatre, with May's rather diffident husband and his peppy but susceptible old father forced to take part in the mocking caresses of the furbelowed ladies.

This is the scene that really starts the trouble, and brings about a series of situations constantly increasing in fun—fun, at least, for the audience, though the characters themselves are plunged into the depths of chagrin. "Stolen Kisses" as a comedy of errors is unequalled.

Miss McAvoy's supporting company includes Hallam Cooley, Reed Howes, Claude Gillingwater, Arthur Hoyt, Edna Murphy, Agnes Franey and Phyllis Crane. The picture was directed by Ray Enright, and E. T. Lowe, Jr., from a story by Franz Suppe.

Family Eats 12 Loaves a Week—Mother Happy

"We ate only 6 loaves of bread a week, now we eat 12. Thanks to Vinol, we all eat good and sleep lots better."—Mrs. J. Kirkby.

Vinol is a delicious compound of cod liver peptone, iron, etc. Nervous, easily tired, anemic people are surprised how Vinol gives new pep, sound sleep and a BIG appetite. The very FIRST bottle often adds several pounds weight to thin children or adults. Tastes delicious. Carnahan's Drug Stores, East Liverpool and Newell.—Adv.

DENNY PICTURE IS COMEDY HIT

Patrons at the State theater are enjoying a hilarious talking picture starring Reginald Denny and a cast of capable actors. The picture is "Clearing the Decks," a rollicking farce comedy of life and adventures aboard an ocean liner.

The story has to do with a young society man who replaces a friend on a sea-voyage, using the friend's name and stateroom. It is not until he falls in love with a pretty fellow-passenger that he learns he is supposed to be confined to his stateroom on a diet of goat's milk and that he is supposed to be slightly unbalanced mentally. His efforts at escaping from custody and in establishing his sanity and identity in the mind of the girl give rise to a rapid succession of funny incidents and dialogue.

Oliver Hasbrouck is the girl. Lucien Littlefield and Otis Harlan have important roles, with Colette Merton, Robert Anderson, Brooks Benedict and Elmer Leslie among the principals.

BROADWAY STORY AT AMERICAN

Those who have wanted to visit Texas Guinan's celebrated New York night club need only see and hear the Warner Brothers' latest Vitaphone all-talking picture "Queen of the Night Clubs," in which the famous hostess is starred at the American theater.

Much of the dramatic action of this colorful story of Broadway night life revolves around the night club owned and operated by the "Queen of the Night Clubs." Constructed along the same plan as Miss Guinan's cabaret, the scenes in this sensational production are startlingly realistic.

A large dance orchestra, many notable, scores of pretty girls dancing in perfect routine, and Texas Guinan, herself, in the role she knows so well as the fascinating hostess in charge of all activities, to entertain the pleasure seekers is the background for the crashing melodrama.

In support of Miss Guinan in "Queen of the Night Clubs" are such well known stage and screen players as Eddie Foy, Jr., Lila Lee, Jack Norworth, John Davidson, John Miljan, Arthur Housman, William Davidson, Jimmie Phillips, Lee Shumway and others. Bryan Foy directed from an original story by Murray Roth and Addison Burkhardt.

Texas Guinan, who was the original two-gungul of the movies makes the change from night club gaiety to the gayer talkies with characteristic abandon.

Facts About "Broadway Melody"

The first all-talking picture from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Harry Beaumont, the director, made "Cur Dancing Daughters," "Main Street" and "Beau Brummel."

Everyone concerned with "The Broadway Melody" is an expert in his own line.

Blonde beauties and bewildering brunettes—sixty—count them!—in the chorus.

Radio listeners who remember the Biltmore Trio will have a chance to hear them in this film.

One of the most costly revue scenes ever staged is used as a setting.

Arthur Freed and Nacio Herb Brown did the lyrics and music—and will remain with M-G-M indefinitely.

Do you know that this entertainment will be offered at the State Theatre?

Whistling statisticians say the song hits will be repeated 930,465,880 times by July 1.

Anita Page, Bessie Love, Charles King and their director all signed long-term contracts after this film.

Yellow Canyon, or Mazda Alley, otherwise known as Broadway, was never dramatized so poignantly before.

Main Stem character by real Main Stem writers is the secret of the play's great success.

Edmund Goulding, who wrote the story, and Jimmy Gleason, dialogue writer, know show life upside down.

Laurence Stallings says the film world will now be paging Miss Love and loving Miss Page.

One thousand girls were looked over in picking "The Broadway Melody" beauty brigade.

Dance connoisseurs may now try out the "Tampa Step"—designed for this film.

Younger generation plays reach their climax with this singing-dancing-talking musical drama.

Famous Maternity Center

"1929 Babies Will Be the Best Behaved," Experts Say

"The well baby is the happy baby," say authorities on baby care, "and the 1929 mother knows more about keeping babies well than any of her predecessors."

At the famous Maternity Center in New York, one of the important things thousands of mothers learn is the safe cleansing of baby's clothes.

"If soap containing harmful alkali is used to wash baby's garments, his tender skin may be irritated," say the Maternity Center experts.

"At the Maternity Center Lux is used for cleansing all of baby's things—clothes, blankets, and even toys."

"Analysis has shown that Lux contains no harmful alkali—and therefore is safe. Since with Lux there is no rubbing to harshen and mat wool fibres, baby things washed in Lux stay soft through hundreds of launderings, keeping baby comfortable and happy."

Could you ask an easier way to own a Hoover? You don't want to let such an opportunity slip by. Telephone—not in a day or so, but RIGHT NOW, and make sure that you get a Hoover on these special terms.

Beginning Today You Can Secure The HOOVER
on Exceptionally EASY TERMS

Admittedly the finest electric cleaner on the market today, The Hoover under any condition offers you a cleaning service that can be obtained in no other way.

But when this cleaning service is available on terms that are exceptionally convenient, when you can buy a Hoover for a down payment that is decidedly less than usual, you should take instant advantage of the opportunity to banish from your home inefficient and laborious cleaning methods and have in their place the easier, faster, deeper cleaning of The Hoover.

What is the great difference between The Hoover and all other cleaners? Simply this. When you clean a rug with a Hoover you clean all the way through.

Suction won't reach the firmly-embedded grit at the bottom of the rug. The way to get this most dangerous dirt of all is to vibrate it to the surface. And that's exactly what The Hoover does through "Positive Agitation." And that's why it removes from the rug more dirt per minute than other cleaners.

Think what a super-cleanliness you bring into your home when you purchase a Hoover! Think of the time and strength which its easier, faster, deeper cleaning would save.

Yet you can buy The Hoover right now—and for only a limited time—for a down-payment so small you will never in the world miss the money. The whole purchase plan is equally generous. You pay for The Hoover as you use it—small monthly amounts that wouldn't inconvenience anyone.

If you have an old cleaner, we will make a liberal allowance for it on your new Hoover. And we offer you a choice of two wonderful models—the famous de luxe model 700, and a new popular-priced model, selling for a price no higher than that of an ordinary vacuum cleaner! Both have the remarkable cleaning principle, exclusive with Hoover products, "Positive Agitation."

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

BY W. S. COUSINS.

(N. S. Financial Editor.)

NEW YORK, April 10.—Stock prices in most sections of the market were forced moderately upward this forenoon on a wave of speculative buying, which represented mostly the short covering of the traders who were "jumping on the market" in yesterday's QP per cent. Money flurry.

Word was passed around that something important would happen in the money and credit situation within the next two weeks, probably the abandonment of the reserve board's deflation campaign, on the understanding that the warnings had accomplished their purpose in staying off a season of wild speculation in the stock market.

Woolworth's new 4-point jump to 218 accompanied the announcement by President Huber Parson that the stock would be split two-for-one and the par value of the stock reduced from 25 to 10. American Can was a favorite above 128.

Stockholders of the United States Steel corporation will hold a special meeting on April 11 to receive a report on the plans of the directors for issuing the new stock and to pass upon the same.

Pool work in Yellow Truck was responsible for the new 3 1/2 point jump in the shares to 4 1/2 in active trading today.

Franklin D. Roosevelt. Callego is 45, unmarried, lives in Hoboken, N. J., and had been employed in the general postoffice where the bomb was discovered for the last seven years.

"I'm innocent—I didn't do it," he insisted. "I don't see why I should be blamed."

SALEM MAN PAYS $600 RUM FINE

Steve George, owner of a soft drink establishment at Salem, who was arrested by county authorities and state dry agents in a liquor cleanup last week, was fined a total of $600 on three charges by Probate Judge Lodge Riddle late yesterday afternoon.

Nick Barson and James Cojara, who were also nabbed on liquor charges, were dismissed for lack of evidence.

George, who was represented by Attorney Nathan Kaufman, Youngstown, stood trial on the liquor possession count, and was fined $100 and costs. He drew another $100 fine for interfering with a state prohibition officer, and another $100 for violation of the anti-vice measure.

Prosecuting Attorney John Bank necht represented the state.

George paid half of his fine and was released to make arrangements for settlement of the remainder.

BANK BANDITS GET $4,500

Two Men Hold up Savings Company in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, April 10.—(INS)—Two bandits who held up the Roumanian Savings & Loan company on the West Side here today escaped with $4,500 in cash.

The bank had just opened this morning when the two masked men entered and forced Victor Popford, teller, and a customer into a rear room, at the point of pistols. The victims were tied while the robbers rifled the cash drawers. The license number on the car in which they made their escape indicates that it was a stolen machine, police say.

BANDIT IS SLAIN IN HOLDUP PLAN

CHICAGO, April 10.—(INS)—One bandit was shot and killed, another was probably fatally wounded, and Deputy United States Marshal Peter Larson was hurt in a battle today when the bandits attempted to rob Larson near his home.

Tex didn't hurt anybody's eyes.

GREAT BRITAIN PLANS 7,000-MILE LONDON-TO-CAPETOWN AIR LINE

LONDON, April 10.—Great Britain is inaugurating the longest commercial air route in the world, a regular weekly service between London and Capetown, South Africa, a distance of 7,000 miles.

The route of the service is from London to Cairo, via Paris and Brindisi, thence along East Africa, through the Sudan, Uganda, Tanganyika, Rhodesia and South Africa.

Imperial Airways airplane will be operated on the first section of the route, from London to Cairo, while huge flying boats will be used on the first half of the African section. Using the Nile and the great lakes as natural alighting points, these "winged ships" will fly via Khartoum, Kisumu and Abercorn. ANTI-LOCUST DRIVE LAUNCHED

JERUSALEM. — Inhabitants of Trans-Jordan have been organized to wage an anti-locust war. Unless the pest is destroyed it is feared that all crops will be destroyed. Compensation at the rate of fifteen cents per two gallons of captured locusts is offered the fighters. Nine companies of the Palestine locust service have proceeded to Trans-Jordan to aid in the fight. They are equipped with a hundred flame guns, poisons and trenching material. Londoners averaged 519 rides on buses, subways and street cars last year.

Canton Boy Finds Health After Years of Suffering

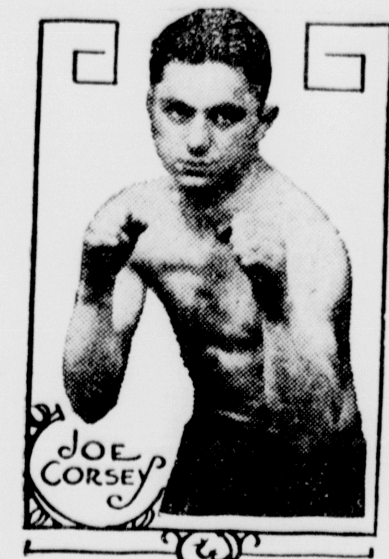

Owa-Ton-Na Breaks Up Nasty Attack of Mus- cular Rheumatism.

Canton, Ohio.—Joe Corsey, well known amateur boxer of 2444 Maple Ave. NE, tells a story of three years' misery with muscular rheumatism followed by an amazing recovery that gives renewed hope to every sufferer that reads it. He says:

"I had a job on the railroad that required a lot of physical strength. But, beginning three years ago, constant attacks of rheumatism sapped my energy so much that I couldn't work steady. Life became miserable for me. I couldn't follow up my boxing, which is a hobby with me. I was compelled to lay off work more and more. Other headaches, indigestion, backaches or pains in the back were with me all the time."

"I tried many remedies but nothing did me any good. Then I read how Owa-Ton-Na had helped other people with just the same symptoms as I had. Why couldn't it do the same for me? I tried a bottle and almost immediately I felt better. Now the rheumatism is almost gone and I have only been taking it a short time. As for pep, I can work harder than I ever could and still have loads of energy left for the gloves."

Rheumatism, one of the most painful afflictions a person can have, need not be endured. It had a three years' hold on this young man and Owa-Ton-Na, by simply striking at the cause and cleansing the poison from his system, has made him the energetic young man nature intended him to be.

Don't give up hope if you are ailing. Don't think that because you have tried other things without success that you cannot find health again.

Let today be the start of a new life for you. All at Carnahan's Drug Store, 144 E. 6th street, and let the special laboratory representatives there tell you how best to take it for the quickest results. Health and happiness are again your again for the mere grasping. Owa-Ton-Na is also sold at Carnahan's East End and Newell, W. Va. Stores.—Adv.

Character Training In Schools Proposed

State Representative W. H. Van Fossan, Lisbon, Sponsors Bill at Columbus.

State Representative W. H. Van Fossan, Lisbon, has introduced a resolution in the house of representatives at Columbus, calling for an investigation and report at the next general assembly as to the advisability of establishing a course in character training in the public schools.

The course is offered as a substitute for the proposed Bible bill which died in committee.

Many opponents of the Bible bill, Van Fossan said, have expressed approval of a plan by which school children could be given character training without the use of the Bible.

The Van Fossan resolution follows: "Whereas, the teaching of right habits and ideals in the public schools of the state and the formation of character in the pupils enrolled in them is the very cornerstone of all true education for the making of our future American citizens; and

"Whereas, the members of the 88th general assembly and many of the people of the state have shown a strong desire that instruction to that end shall be given by the teachers in all of our public schools;

"Therefore, be it resolved that the director of education, and such other persons as he may ask to assist him, are hereby authorized and directed to prepare a manual of subject matter and suggestions on character-training for use in the public schools of the state, and shall report a tentative draft of the same to the 89th general assembly."

TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES' CHIEF SEES MORE HIGHWAY WORK AID IN 1932

John Kerr, Yellow Creek, Praises County Commissioners in Meeting At Lisbon.

LISBON, O., April 10.—"Should the township trustees sit tight for the next two years, I feel certain they will receive more help in the construction of new roads from the county commissioners than they now receive," John Kerr, of Yellow Creek township, president of the Columbiana County Township Trustees' association, declared at a meeting here yesterday.

"By 1932 all township bonds for road purposes will have been paid off," he said. "We cannot do very much with the $1,399 we will receive from the new gas tax law, but after all of the township bonds have been paid, and the present county road program is finished, I am sure we will be favoured more by the commissioners than we are at present. The commissioners have put over a wonderful road program, and we know the situation, so just be patient and I am sure that within a couple of years we will be getting out of the mud faster than we now realize."

C. L. Van Voorhis Speaks.
Forty-eight trustees and township clerks attended the session which was called by County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk.

Kirk, County Auditor Elmer E. Walker, Commissioner's Clerk L. W. Johnson and State Representative W. H. VanFossan spoke during the morning.

During the afternoon session, addresses were made by Representative VanFossan, A. I. Getz of the Perry township trustees; Charles S. Ward of the Unity township board and L. R. Whinnery of the Butler township board. The three trustees reviewed the session of the Trustees' State association at Columbus.

Carl L. VanVoorhis of the Ohio Good Roads Federation, Columbus, explained amendments to the Green road law as passed by the last session of the legislature.

Predicts Road Improvements.
"You must realize at the beginning that you cannot do much with $1,399 annually from the gas tax, and that you will have to obtain funds from other sources to put over any major road improvement program," Van Voorhis said. "This additional money must come from the county and the state and by assessments. You will always have to supplement this $1,399 fund. You have a county system of roads—in fact, you have two, one of major importance, and another having to do with the incorporation of roads designated under the Green law. Don't ride your county commissioners too hard. They have been doing excellent work. You'll get your roads improved, I am sure, for I know how the Columbiana commissioners work. They are to be commended for what they have done and what they are now undertaking."

Lunch was served the trustees and clerks by the Standard Slog company.

Before adjournment, the trustees voted thanks to County Surveyor Kirk for the work he has done for the different township boards.

THREE APPLY FOR CITIZENSHIP

Nathan Kornrich, aged 33, a native of Poland, and a manufacturer of soft drinks at 225 East second street, East Liverpool, has filed with Clerk of Courts Frank Ballantine a declaration of intent to become a citizen of the United States. He arrived at New York, Jan. 7, 1914.

T. W. H. Wouter, 34, a native of Holland and a horticulturist, now living at Columbiana, has also filed a declaration. He entered the United States at Niagara Falls, N. Y., March 23, 1928.

A declaration has also been filed by Nicholas Salari, 29, a Rumanian, metal worker, who lives at 21 New Garden street, Salem. He entered the United States at Baltimore, Jan. 29, 1909.

BIG APPLE CROP IS PREDICTED

"There is every indication that this will be a big apple year in Columbiana county," County Commissioner Frank Rye of Middleton township declared today.

"Both apple and peach trees are showing a heavy bloom, in fact, trees in the eastern part of the county are carrying a heavier bloom now than a year ago. The apple crop last year was not exceptionally heavy, but the peach crop was considered normal. Unless there is a sudden freeze, growers about the county agree that the peach and apple crops this season will be the heaviest in years."

Small fruit plants are reported to be doing well. Berries grown in the eastern part of the county this season will be trucked to East Liverpool, Youngstown and Pittsburgh.

AFFLICTIONS OF YEARS FIND END IN NEW KONJOLA

Well Known Resident of Washington C. H., Relates
His Remarkable Experience.

MR. SAMUEL DOUGLASS.
"I am seventy-eight, and the many people who know me here in my home town, know that for many years I was almost a helpless cripple as the result of rheumatism and other ailments," said Mr. Samuel Douglass, 565 Leesburg avenue, Washington C. H.

"They know that I had to walk about on crutches, and they know that for weeks at a time I was confined to my bed, unable to be up and around. For fifteen years I suffered from this terrible affliction, which centered in my knees and lower limbs. Indigestion added to my misery; ailing kidneys got me up as many as eight times a night, and I was miserable all over and in every way."

"My attention was drawn to the many endorsements of Konjola. Could this medicine do me any good? Konjola surely went to the very root of my trouble. Just two bottles of this Konjola banished all my rheumatism, indigestion and kidney trouble. No wonder this Konjola is the most talked of medicine in America."

Konjola is sold in East Liverpool at Carnahan drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

Yank Golfers Set Sail Today For Invasion Of British Links

Will Battle John Bull For Three Golf Crowns

Open and Amateur Titles and Women's Championship at Stake; Ryde Team, George Ven Elm and Glenna Collett Look Good.

By Davis J. Walsh.
NEW YORK, April 1.—A most ostentatious team of golfers—ladies, gentlemen and professionals, if you please—will set sail for England late this afternoon on a matter of urgent business. They go in the guise of friendship and all is bound to be garlands of heliotrope from the very first. But when it is over and Mr. Hagen has delivered himself of his customary rebuke to the populace, strictly for its own good, the British may not have much left except their self-sufficiency and the right to go out on the course and pick divots.

In some respects, the argosy is the most impressive ever sponsored by American golf and, although Robert T. Jones will not take part, the prospect isn't altogether reassuring to a country that has seen seven of its last eight open championships settled in "the states."

This record has prompted the question, what is the matter with British golf, and most of us know the answer. There is nothing the matter with British golf, except that the boys over there are too ready to do what the photographer tells them. They watch the birdie. The American doesn't. He gets it.

This being the case, it would be mildly surprising if at least one major championship didn't return with the invaders. It is possible, indeed, that all three, in addition to the Ryder cup, might fall into alien hands. That, of course, wouldn't be a normal development. It would be a miracle. Yet the golf is there.

First, for the capture of the open by the Ryder cup personnel and extraneous professionals second, the amateur by George Ven Elm, and third, the women's championship by Glenna Collett. Our most plausible chance naturally rests with the open, for here we have not only the habit of success but the men to make the habit permanent.

For example, sailing with the Ryder cup team today are Hagen, three winner of the British title and its present holder Horton Smith, the most sensational medalist of the year; Farrell and Diegel, respective national open and P. G. A. champions, and Sarazen, former champion in both of these divisions and a third-place winner in the British event last year. Al Espinosa, Ed Dudley, Johnny Golden, Joe Turnesa and Al Watrous complete an official team that probably has had no equal in point of skill and prestige. These entries ought to be enough but there are more. Macdonald Smith, who was beaten out of the title by an unruly British gallery four years ago, is already in England getting himself ready for the bid of a life time and Bill Mehlhorn, smarting under the implied slight of the Ryder cup committee, is going along to show them that mistakes will happen and do.

Von Elm is a chump in no man's open tournament, either, and with the possibility that Tommy Armour, 1927 American champion, and John Anderson, former holder of the French title, will join the troupe at the last minute, the pilgrimage might seem to be complete in all essential details.

BACK ON FARM

Wrestling humans or haystacks means the same thing to Harry Steel of East Sparta, Ohio, where the Olympic heavyweight wrestling champion is working on his father's farm.

AT MINNEAPOLIS—Harry Dillon, Winnipeg heavyweight, knocked out Billy Freas, Indianapolis (3).

LOSES TO TONY

Eddie Anderson, Chicago, clever junior lightweight, faced a big test in his career last night when he tackled Tony Canzoneri, the former featherweight champion, in a 10-rounder at Milwaukee.

But the fast Tony was too much for Eddie in this scrap. Canzoneri coping a decision at the end of the fight.

In Training Camps

Peck Lets Two Go.

NEW ORLEANS, April 10.—The Cleveland Indians were to break camp here tonight and start their journey northward. Pitcher Verne Underhill and Shortstop Dan Jessee were released by Roger Peckinpaugh, the Indian manager, yesterday. Both Underhill and Jessee are from the International league. The Indians are to play an exhibition game against Birmingham tomorrow.

26 on Pirate Squad.

SHREVEPORT, La., April 10.—The Pirate squad numbered only 26 members today, just one above the minimum limit effective June 15, and will not be further reduced until after the playing season gets under way. Manager Elish announced. The Bucks will play the Detroit Tigers here again today and attempt to make a clean sweep of the series. The Tigers fell again yesterday, 10 to 3.

Macks, Phils Even.

PHILADELPHIA, April 10.—The Athletics and Phillies meet at Shibe Park again this afternoon in the battle to determine the city championship. The teams are even-strengthened now with a single victory each.

Columbus Wins in Ninth.

MACON, Ga., April 10.—Another ball game won in the ninth inning. That is the way in which baseball fans here today were describing yesterday's exhibition game between the Columbus Senators and the Macon club of the South Atlantic league, which the Senators capped in the last frame, 8 to 6. Swinging into the last bracket neck-and-neck, with six runs apiece, Tony Cucinello, of the Senator infield, barked one to deep right center for a triple, scoring High and McNulty, who had walked before him. Thus, Tony became the star of the day, and the Bucks were satisfied, having evened things up with the

Athletic Unit Brings Tech Kilties Here

Boosters' Group Seeks Funds for Future Projects.

The Carnegie Tech Kiltie band, one of the most unique college musical organizations in the country, will perform Friday night in the public auditorium, under auspices of the East Liverpool Athletic association.

The athletic association is bringing the Tartan musicians here for a definite purpose and that purpose is to replenish the association treasury.

Last winter the association brought about a revival of grade school basketball here. Teams were organized among the young athletes in virtually every grade school in the city. Over a seven-week period the kids got a big kick out of their basketball work outs in the auditorium. Then it wound up with a tournament which attracted hundreds of cage fans at every session.

But all this cost something. William Watkins and N. F. Loran, as coaches, were paid $176 for their services, according to officials of the association, and it is the plan of the association to put this back in the treasury from receipts of the band concert, if possible, so that other projects can be carried out.

A talk by Saul Mielziner, center on the Carnegie Tech football team, arranged as an added feature, will interest local football fans who attend the concert.

The Kiltie outfit will arrive here Friday night at 6 o'clock and will go to the Second Presbyterian church for their dinner. Boosters then will be asked to meet at 7 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. to take part in a parade prior to the concert.

The band includes about 60 pieces. Each musician wears a costume costing something like $125. W. F. Sullivan, the leader has been with them for 17 years.

Tickets for the concert are on sale at Heimle's and Brian's.

Peaches, who won the first game of the series, 6 to 5.

Nats Beat the Giants Twice.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., April 10.—Washington was first in war, first in peace and first to trim the New York Giants twice in succession this year. The Nats walloped the tar out of Fred Fitzsimmons at Augusta yesterday and swamped the McGrawmen 7 to 3.

Yanks Trim Little Rock.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 10.—No exhibition game in which the New York Yankees appear is complete without a pillow fight. Yesterday's battle of cushions was staged by the fans of Little Rock, Ark., after Babe left the game in the eighth inning and took all the excitement with him. The score was New York 3, Little Rock 1. The world's champions play the Birmingham Barons here today.

Dodgers Drop Two Rookies.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 10.—The Atlanta Crackers lost a ball game to Brooklyn yesterday, 16 to 4, but obtained two rookies from the Robins. They were Max Rosenfeld, former Birmingham outfielder, and Al Lopez, who used to catch for Macon. The Crackers didn't want Jim Richardson, former New Haven pitcher.

Kid Ruff, Canton Welter, Will Try Hand At Stopping Edwards

Stark Countian, 21 Years Old, Has Won 17 Out of 20 Fights in Last Two Years.

KID RUFF, who's got to be rough if he expects to handle Freddy Edwards, the Chester welterweight, has been elected to oppose the West Virginian in the six round semi-final to the Al Corbett-Chester Smallwood main event on the Valley A. C. program at Wellsville next Monday.

Kid Ruff hails from Canton. He's 21 years old and has been boxing for two years. He admits himself that he has won 17 fights. But he further confesses that he has lost twice and further more that he has been knocked out once. This last admission is a bad social error, in the realms of fist-cuffs, at least, and the revelation must indicate only that the Ruff person is telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but. However, in the case of a scrapper who owns up to his weaknesses, his best performance are thereby more likely to be emphasized in the mind of the fair fan.

And a record such as Ruff has, including 17 victories out of 20 starts, is nothing to conceal in the corner of the clothes press.

He stopped Pat Perrone, the Cantonian who won by a first round knockout in his sole appearance a few weeks ago in the Valley A. C. ring. He also won from Jimmy Woods and Jimmy Grant, Akron. He beat Joe Hartzell and Mike Kidler of Paul Pirrone, Cleveland welterweight, stopped Russ Leroy, Fargo, N. D. (5).

AT HAGERSTOWN, Md.—Joe Belmont, of Baltimore, won decision over Kid Williams, former bantamweight champion (8).

AT PARIS.—Al Brown, Panama Negro, knocked out Joe Carman, of England (3).

AT LOS ANGELES.—Bert Colima, Mexican middleweight, knocked out "Wild Bill" Rogers, Los Angeles. (4).

GASOLINE DERBY BILLED IN AKRON

AKRON, O., April 10.—The 100-mile gasoline derby to be known as the Rubber City Sweepstakes, scheduled for the Akron-Cleveland board speedway, Sunday afternoon, May 5, promises to eclipse any event of a similar nature ever staged in this part of the country.

Entry blanks were sent out today to every driver of any importance from coast to coast and returns are expected within a few days. This event undoubtedly will attract the pick of the auto race talent of the entire country.

Any car entered is conceded a chance as endurance will play a big part in the long grind. However, the fastest cars will have an edge in the time trials, which is the event preceding the big race, where each car and driver qualifies for one of the 15 positions in the big spring classic.

The Rubber City Sweepstakes, a 100 mile race will afford the fans of this section plenty of opportunity to see a racer come into the pits for tire changes, to take on gas and oil and out again to make up for lost time. This in itself is a decided feature of the long race and will afford extra thrills for auto race lovers.

State's Game Sites Will Be Well Stocked

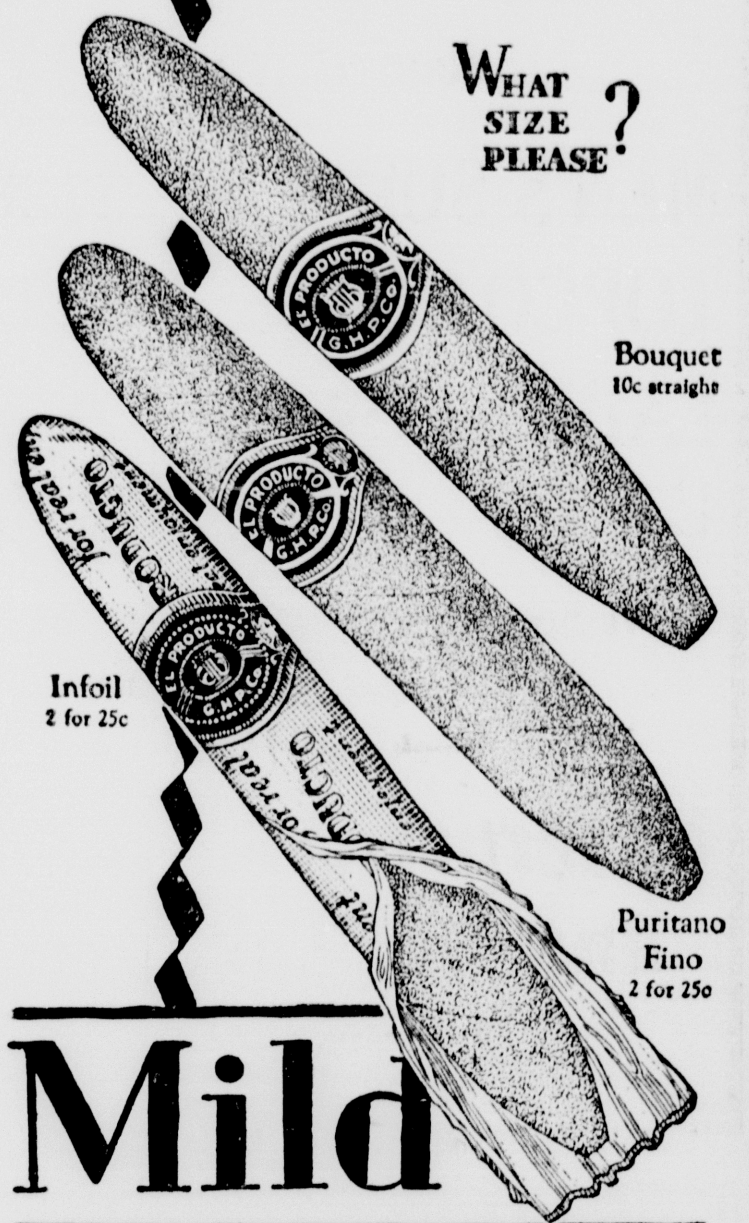

Plans Outlined at Meeting of County Sportsmen.

Plans of the fish and game department of the state department of agriculture for stocking Buckeye game preserves were revealed to members of the governing board of the Columbiana County Fish and Game Protective association, at a meeting last night in the court house, Lisbon.

The department, it was announced, is preparing to place stocks of wild turkeys and Hungarian pheasants in preserves throughout the state. There will be approximately 14,000 pheasants available for distribution in the state this year.

Plans for the organization's annual field day, held usually the latter part of July or first of August, were discussed.

Story of Adventurous Youth, Mystery, Fortune and a Girl.

By Herman Landon

"Excitement? Have you had any excitement?" "Nothing but," said Hannan. He studied Mr. Peters with a covert but observing gaze. Somehow that last sentence had not sounded quite natural. It had been edged with an undertone that instantly reawakened some of the suspicions instilled in his mind by his grandfather's letter. He resolved to subject Mr. Peters' candor to a little test. "Only this afternoon," he said lightly. "I was set upon by a pair of ruffians in a downtown cafe."

"Indeed?" Mr. Peters exclaimed, and again Hannan weighed carefully all the little shades in his voice. "What happened?" "There was a certain letter in my pocket. They took it away from me," Hannan lied glibly. "They took it?" Mr. Peters started from his chair, but sank back again. "I hope it wasn't important."

Hannan smiled. His little ruse had succeeded in an astonishing way. Mr. Peters' fragmentary sentence, together with the look of stupefaction that had lingered for just an instant in his eyes, had started a train of flashes running through Hannan's mind. "I envy you, Mr. Peters," he commented. "I really do. It's a great gift to be able to control one's expression. You controlled yours pretty well that time—better than I could have done myself. Your mask slipped off for just a second, and then it was back again. It was very well done."

"My dear young man—" Mr. Peters made a gesture of bafflement—"I haven't the least idea what you are talking about."

"No? Well, I'll explain. I told you the two bruises got the letter away from me. It was a lie—and you knew it was a lie. How did you know?"

Mr. Peters gave him a long, injured look. Then his expression changed to one of good-natured frustration mingled with admiration. He studied Hannan's face as if for the first time questioning the young man's unsophisticated look.

"You are a clever young man—very clever," he murmured. "I knew, of course, that the letter was not removed from your possession, for I had received a report to the contrary. Besides, I saw you turn it into a cigarette lighter. I couldn't know it was that particular letter, but I had strong suspicions. Yes, you startled me for a moment—threw me off my mental base. Clumsy of me!"

Hannan's smile grew a little somber. His grandfather's warning came back to him in all its terse forcefulness. Horace Peters, for all his ludicrous appearance, was that astute sort of villain who is too clever to persist in vain pretenses.

"Would you mind telling me," Hannan asked, "why you were so anxious to get hold of the letter?"

"Yes, I would mind very much."

"Do you know its contents?"

"No, but perhaps I could make a close guess." Mr. Peters rolled shrewd, smiling eyes at his young companion. "Among other things I believe your grandfather said something about me in the letter—something complimentary."

"What makes you think that?"

"Why, you practically told me so yourself. I gathered it from your expression when you first saw me. You had never seen me before, yet you stared at me as if—well, as if somebody had warned you against me."

Mr. Peters laughed quietly. "There must have been a description of me in the letter. Otherwise, how did you recognize me? Tell me that, Hannan."

Hannan's eyes narrowed. Mr. Peters' guess had come very close to the truth.

"You make me very curious, Horace Peters. As the other great Horace might have said, you've got me guessing. Be a good sport and answer one more question. Why did you come here tonight? It wasn't just your tender heart and loving kindness, was it?"

Mr. Peters hesitated a long time before he answered. At length he got up, crossed the floor a few times with his prim, rooster-like strut, stopped to admire a water color of some merit on the wall, and flicked his coat tails with a staccato movement.

"If I answer you truthfully, you will call me a liar," he said in a serio-comic manner.

"Credit me with a little tact," Hannan begged in a faintly mocking tone.

"Well, then—" Mr. Peters turned away from the water color and strutted up to where Hannan stood. He took hold of the solitary button on the young man's dinner jacket and twisted it absently. "You have already guessed my motive, Hannan. It was my kind and tender heart that drew me here tonight. Oh, call me a liar if you like. I don't mind. Your grandfather once called me that. But he was wrong."

The mocking smile on Hannan's lips grew fainter and fainter. He stared at the little man who stood twirling the button on his dinner jacket. Why should Mr. Peters have told such a clumsy and barefaced lie? A man of his subtlety and mental agility could surely have invented a better one. Why, then—? Hannan wavered a little. It did not seem likely that a man of Mr. Peters' intelligence would have made such an absurd statement unless it happened to be the truth.

"Well, why don't you call me a liar?" the little man went on, still fiddling absently with Hannan's button. "As a matter of fact, I don't care a snap whether you believe me or not. I am only telling you, in order to keep the record straight, that your grandfather did me an injustice. Toward the very last our long and intimate friendship was ruptured by a misunderstanding. I was too proud—or stubborn, if you prefer—to argue with him and try to convince him he was wrong. For that matter," he added with a touch of asperity, "I'm not going to argue with you."

"Let go my button," said Hannan, a little dazed from his attempt to reconcile his conflicting impressions.

"You make me nervous with that fiddling. What was the misunderstanding about?"

"I won't be cross-examined," Horace Peters drew himself up with dignity. "I can see you think I'm a liar, even though you're not candid enough to tell me so to my face."

Hannan's brain was churning with incongruities. Still another contradiction came to him. "Was it your kind and tender heart that made you sick those two bruises on me?"

"It was," said Mr. Peters coldly. "I acted for your own good. I don't expect you to believe it, and I shan't attempt to convince you. I can read your mind, young man. You are determined to interpret my actions in the worst possible light. It's beneath my dignity to argue with such as you. Good night, sir!"

He snatched up his silk hat and strutted off in a great and haughty haste. Hannan was bewildered and speechless. He watched Mr. Peters' flying coat tails, almost tempted to call him back, but feeling it would be useless. A personality like Mr. Peters', full of contradictions, eccentricities and odd peculiarities, made him feel at a loss.

And just then, with his hand on the doorknob, the little man turned. He came back, holding his head high, and stuck his hand in his pocket.

"I almost forgot," His voice was loftily frigid. He drew an envelope from his pocket. "Your father handed me this the last time I saw him. He asked me to deliver it to you."

Hannan took the envelope, glanced at his father's prim and cramped handwriting, and started to open it.

"I have a confession to make," said Mr. Peters in the same cold and haughty tones. "I opened and read your father's letter."

Hannan gave him a dazed look.

"I do not choose to explain," declared the little man. "Neither shall I apologize. I opened and read your father's letter for reasons that seemed sufficient to me."

With that he strutted off again. Hannan looked down at the flap of the envelope. The opening and resealing must have been done very cleverly, for no sign of tampering was evident. It occurred to him that Mr. Peters could have withheld his confession and Hannan would have been none the wiser.

He drew out and read the inclosure. The letter was trivial in its nature, consisting merely of a number of suggestions concerning the disposition of certain articles belonging to the family—just such a letter as might have been written by a man of quiet and humdrum tendencies. If Mr. Peters had expected to discover something of a sensational nature, he must certainly have been disappointed.

Music Department Will Stage Production in Lincoln High School Friday Night.

MIDLAND, Pa., April 10.—A cast of 50 will present the operetta, "Tulip Time," under the auspices of the music department in the auditorium of the Lincoln high school Friday night.

The operetta, which depicts a journey of college students through the Netherlands, where they witness dances and hear songs native to the land, is being directed by Miss Lois Walker, supervisor of music.

Star in "Stolen Kisses."

Scene from "Stolen Kisses" starring May McAvoy
A Warner Bros. Production

The story takes the characters to Paris and the famous Folies Bergères, where the gay atmosphere only serves to increase the troubles of the dainty May and her husband, Hallam Cooley. The scenes where Hal and his crusty old father, Claud Gillingwater, are enticed on the stage by the company of ravishing chorus girls, are gems of humorous action.

At the Ceramic Theater, Thursday, Friday, Saturday.

Local Drug Store Has Real Service

—FOR—
Rupture Sufferers

Carnahan Drug Co., 114 E. 6th street always a progressive concern, is rapidly becoming the haven of relief for rupture sufferers in this vicinity.

Recognizing the fact that maximum comfort and good results from wearing a truss depend upon having it properly fitted to the individual, the Carnahan Drug Company some time ago took steps to assure such service.

A member of the organization, W. C. Irwin was sent to the factory of the Akron Truss Company where a complete and practical course in anatomy and truss-fitting was taken under the guidance of the factory experts. A private fitting room, with the latest equipment for correct truss fitting, was established and a new service, one welcomed by truss wearers, put into operation.

"Consult your physician first" is the advice given all rupture sufferers by the Carnahan Drug Company. This is especially important for those who have just a small rupture and may think it trivial.—Adv.

Brooklyn Pastor Speaks At Nazarene Church Revival.

With a large crowd in attendance at the Nazarene church revival last night, the Rev. G. Howard Rowe, of Brooklyn, N. Y., preached on the theme, "God a Consuming Fire."

Congregational singing was directed by Burl Sparks, of Seymour, Ind., who again played a hand-saw solo, "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me." He sang one of his own compositions, "He Is More Than Friend To Me."

Announcement was made that the Rev. Mr. Rowe would speak tonight on the subject, "Second Hand Clothes and Old Bottles." Mr. Sparks would sing another of his own compositions, "His Ransomed Me."

The final verse of the twelfth chapter of the Hebrews containing the seven-word statement: "For our God is a consuming fire," was the evangelist's text.

"To manifest His presence to mankind God used fire as a symbol," he declared. "In the creation he said, 'Let there be light.' And light is heat. And heat generates life. So that the earth, without form, melted the glacial deposits and vegetation sprang therefrom.

"It was as fire that God appeared to Moses in the burning bush and indicated action that took the Jews back to Canaan to a background that which later made for Christianity. Fire denoted the purity of God in that it destroyed all that was impure.

"Fire likewise was necessary in the various sacrifices on the altars by which the Lord was worshipped in these early days. When fire fell upon the altars the act indicated that the offerings were acceptable to God.

"At Pentecost when the Holy Spirit came to the disciples and the founders of the early church He was manifested to them as cloven tongues like unto fire.

"Fire is cleansing. So the baptism of the Holy Ghost was indicative of an inward cleansing from sin and making for holiness as God demanded."
